RETURN

To an order of the House, dated in the 29th December 1890, for an alphabetical Index of lands granted from 1763 to 31st December 1890, county by county and township by township.

INTRODUCTION.

In order that this list may be easily understood, it is advisable to explain summarily the different systems of granting public lands followed in this Province since the country was ceded to England.

Instructions of 1763.

In taking possession of Canada, the Imperial Government took steps to avoid the inconveniences caused by large concessions of land, which then gave rise to much trouble in the other British colonies in North America. For that purpose, the Lords Commissioners of Trade and Plantations in 1763 sent instructions to the Canadian government, limiting grants of public land to 100 acres for every head of a family and 50 acres for every other person, white or colored, composing the family, with power to extend the total area to 1,000 acres in exceptional cases. The object of this liberality was to induce English settlers from adjacent provinces to settle in Canada. According to these instructions, all Crown lands were to be granted in free tenure and without any other condition than the reservation of the right of the Crown to resume possession of the whole or part of the land granted in the event of its being required for military purposes. These grants were made by means of location tickets or occupation permits.

There is, in the archives of the Registrar's Department, no trace or rather no registration of the grants which may have been made under these instructions. The first registered concession bears the date of 1788. Bouchette, in his Topographical description of Lower Canada, says that the seigniories of Malbaie and Mount Murray were granted on the 27th April 1762 to John Nairn and Malcolm Fraser, two officers of the 78th Regiment of foot ; but there is not the slightest trace of these concessions in the archives of this Department.

Instructions of 1775

The object of the act of 1774, the first regular constitution of Canada, was to re-establish in the country all French laws affecting the tenure of real estate. Consequently, the Imperial Government, in 1775, sent new instructions to the Governor of the Colony ordering that, in future, the public lands were to be granted according to the French system, that is in fiefs and seigniories, the same as under the French rule, with the exception of the justices seignioriales. In 1786, the Colonial Department sent special instructions to Lord Dorchester, the Governor of the Province, ordering him to give grants of land of a specified extent to the refugee loyalists from the United States and to the officers and men of the 84th regiment, a colonial corps organized during the revolutionary war. These instructions, however, stated, in formal terms, that the concessions so made would depend from the Crown as seignior and be subject to all the other conditions of seigniorial tenure.

They also limited the extent of these concessions as follows :

To staff officers	5,000	acres
" captains	3,000	"
" subalterns	2,000	"
" non-commissioned officers	200	"
" privates	50	"

As the officers and soldiers declined to accept these favors because they objected to the feudal tenure, the Government returned to the system of grants by location tickets established by the instructions of 1763 and abolished by those of 1775.

It was under this system of location tickets and of the instructions of 1786 that the lands were granted to the soldiers and American loyalists who afterwards settled in Gaspé.

The following is one of these location tickets :

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC } Dated the twenty-first day of May, Anno Domini Quebec } 1787

The bearer hereof, Charles Dugas, being entitled to.....acres of Land, by His Majesty's Instructions to the Governor of this Province, has drawn a Lot (No 43) consisting of one hundred acres, three acres in front by thirty three acres and one third in depth, in part of the said proportion, in the Seigniory of Carleton and having taken the Oaths, and made and signed the Declaration required by the Instructions, he is hereby authorized to settle and improve the said Lot, without delay; and being settled thereon, he shall receive a patent, grant or deed of concession, at the expiration of twelve months from the date hereof, to enable him to hold an inheritable or assignable estate in the said lot.

(Signed) JOHN COLLINS.

D. S. G.

Not one of these grants or location tickets in the district of Gaspé appears in the books of the Registrar's Department, which books were only commenced in 1788 by the registration of grants to John Shoolbred, merchant, of London, of the posts of Bonaventure and Percé, with stone houses and stores and of the seigniory of Shoolbred at the mouth of the river Nouvelle.

CONSTITUTIONAL ACT AND INSTRUCTIONS OF 1791.

The Act of 1791, which divided Canada into two provinces and introduced the representative system into the country, contains the following provision with reference to public lands.

"XLIII. All lands which shall be hereafter granted within the said Province of Upper Canada, shall be granted in free and common soccage, in like manner as lands are now holden in free and common soccage, in that part of Great Britain called England; and in every case where lands shall be hereafter granted within the said Province of Lower Canada, and where the grantee thereof shall desire the same to be granted in free and common soccage, the same shall be so granted; but subject, nevertheless, to such alterations with respect to the nature and consequences of such tenure of free and common soccage, as may be established by any law or laws which may be made by His Majesty, His Heirs or Successors, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province."

After the passing of this Act, the Minister for the Colonies sent new instructions to the Governor containing the same provisions as those of 1763 as to the quantity of land to be granted and also certain conditions of settlement which are embodied as follows in the letters patent issued under such instructions:

"And provided always and these Our Present Letters are upon this express condition that if the said Grantees, their Heirs or Assigns or some or one of them shall not within one year next after the date of these Our Present Letters settle on the premises hereby to them granted so many families as shall amount to one family for every twelve hundred acres thereof or if they, the said grantees, their heirs or assigns or some or one of them shall not within three years to be computed as aforesaid, plant and effectually cultivate at least two acres for every hundred acres of such of the hereby granted premises as are capable of cultivation and shall not also within seven years to be computed as aforesaid, plant and effectually cultivate at least seven acres for every hundred acres of such of the hereby granted premises as are capable of cultivation that then and in any of these cases this Our Present Grant and every thing therein contained shall cease and be absolutely void, and the lands and premises hereby granted shall revert and escheat to Us, Our Heirs and Successors and shall thereupon become the absolute and entire property of Us or them, in the same manner as if this Our Present Grant had never been made, any thing therein contained to the contrary in any way notwithstanding."

These conditions were embodied in all the letters patent issued between 1791 and 1806, but they remained a dead letter and were barely observed in a few exceptional cases. Article 59 of the Royal Instructions of 1763 ordered the Surveyor General or any other person appointed by the Governor to make, once a year or oftener if required, an inspection of the lands granted by the Governor and to make a written report of such inspection to the Governor, specifying whether the conditions contained in the letters patent had or had not been fulfilled and what progress had been made in the accomplishment of such conditions. But these instructions were never followed, except under the administration of Lord Dalhousie, who ordered Surveyor-General Bouchette to make such inspection. Mr. Bouchette published the information collected in the course of his inspection in his works, especially in the Topographical Description of Lower Canada.

In practically abolishing the system of land grants, according to the seigniorial method, the act of 1791 introduced into the country all the evils and troubes which the British Government sought to avoid by the instructions of 1663 and give rise to the plague of large land-holders which has so greatly hindered the settlement and material advancement of the Province. Under the seignorial regime an individual might, without any trouble, obtain large grants of land inasmuch as he was obliged to concede land to any bona fide settler who applied for it. But under the system of free grants and free tenure, as established by the act and instructions of 1791, owing to the neglect or connivance of the provincial authorities, a single individual could obtain a whole township and close it to settlers; this has unfortunately happened in a considerable portion of the Eastern Townships. It was under this regime that the system of township leaders and associates originated, which, in less than 15 years, from 1796 to 1809, gave 1,457,209 acres of the best Crown Lands into the possession of about seventy persons, one of whom, Nicolas Austin, obtained in 1797 a quantity of 62,621 acres of land in the township of Bolton.

The system was carried on as follows: A person wishing to thus take posession of a portion of the public domain, first came to an understanding with the members of the Executive Council and the officers occupying the highest positions, to secure their concurrence and that of the Governor. He afterwards came to an understanding with a certain number of individuals, picked up at hap-hazard, to get them to sign a petition to the Governor, praying for the granting of the land he desired. To compensate them for this accommodating act on their part, he paid his associates a nominal sum, generally a guinea, in consideration of which they at once retransferred their share to him as soon as the letters patent were issued. Sometimes one or two of the associates kept a lot of 100 or 200 acres on a grant covering several thousands of acres, but this was the exception, not the general rule. For that purpose stationers sold blanks of such re-transfers, the form of which, as shewn in 1821 before a committee of the Legislative Assembly, had been prepared and drafted by the Attorney-General.

These frauds were committed with the knowledge of the Executive Council, several of whose members even used this means to obtain large grants of public lands. Prescott, one of the Governors of the time, wished to stop this waste of the public domain, but he brought down upon himself the hatred of the Executive Councillors who, headed by Judge Osgood, managed to obtain his recall. Sir Robert Shore Milne, Prescott's successor, showed himself better disposed towards the spoilers of the Crown domain and to give them a tangible proof of his good intentions, he had a grant given to him of 48,061 acres in the townships of Compton, Stanstead and Barnston.

Every pretext was made use of to despoil the public domain in favor of the friends of the administration. Thus, to reward John Black, a shipbuilder, for having betrayed the American McLean in order to hand him over to justice and have him executed, on the pretext that he was fomenting rebellion, the Government gave him a free grant on the 30th December 1799 of the greater portion of the township of Dorset or an area of 53.000 acres. The following list shows the extent of the principal grants of public land so made from 1796 to 1809.

These figures show how the public domain was disposed of at that time. These extravagant, not to say scandalous, concessions, continued for a long while without the grantees taking the slightest trouble to fulfill the conditions of settlement which were nevertheless in force.

These excessive grants virtually closed the public domain to colonization. As the large proprietors did not even wish to open roads through their properties, it was impossible to pass through them to take up lands situated in rear, and bona fide settlers were unable to obtain land without passing through the Caudine Forks of the large proprietors The Legislative Assembly took up the matter and upon its representations, the Imperial Parliament, in 1825, passed the act 6, Geo. II, chap. 59 ss. 10 and 11, establishing a court to ascertain whether the conditions of settlement attached to each grant had been fulfilled and if they had not been to declare the grant forfeited in favor of the Crown. As the majority of those who were likely to be dealt with by this court were the most influential in the Province, they found means to nullify this measure of reform ; two or three cases submitted to this court of escheats at Sherbrooke were dismissed for informalities in the proceedings and every thing remained in statu quo. We may add that the statute establishing this court has never been repealed and is still in force in the Province. The system of township leaders and associates commenced to fall into desuetude about 1806 and, from that date, almost all the large grants were made in each case in the name of one individual or of a single family. Thus, in 1810, the Ellice family obtained a grant of 25, 592 acres in Godmanchester and another of 3,819 acres in Hinchinbrooke. In 1815, the Governor, Lord Drummond, granted to Hon. John Richardson 29,800 acres in Grantham and 11,050 acres to Hon. Thos. Dunn, in Stukeley.

These violations of the instructions of the Imperial Government which sequestrated the best part of the public domain in favour of a few speculators, were encouraged by the Imperial Government itself. Thus, of his own accord the Duke of Portland gave 48,062 acres to the Governor Sir Robert Shore Milnes and 12,000 acres to each of the members of the Executive Council constituting the Land Commission which had given all the extravagant and scandalous concessions up to that date

Location Tickets or Occupation Permits

This system was introduced in 1818 to counteract a little the abuses in the alienation of the public domain. From that date, grants were made by means of location tickets, permitting the grantee to occupy the land applied for by him and containing certain conditions of settlement which had to be fulfilled before the letters patent could be issued. At the outset these conditions required,in addition to the building of a house,the clearing and cultivation of four acres per lot, as well as permanent residence for three years on the land so cleared. But this condition was soon abandoned and all that was required of the grantee to obtain his letters-patent was to build a hut and cut down four acres of forest.

Instructions of 1826.

Up to 1826, all the public lands had been granted free of charge. That year the Treasury Board with the object of increasing the provincial revenue, ordered that, in future, public lands should be sold by auction and be payable in four instalments without interest. In virtue of these inspections the only lands to be offered to purchasers were those selected for the purpose by the Governor on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Crown Lands, an office instituted that very year. Those instructions also allowed small lots of land to be sold to bona fide settlers for what was called a constituted rent and which was in reality only interest at 5 per cent on the estimated value of the land.

Instructions of 1831 and 1837.

In 1831, Lord Goderich sent new instructions to the Governor, ordering that, in future, the price of public lands was to be paid by half-yearly instalments with interest. But these instructions were not followed. On the recommendation of the Commissioner of Crown Lands, the Governor gave orders that the old system be followed and the price of Crown Lands be received by annual instalments without interest.

In 1837, Lord Glenelg ordered the Provincial Government to receive the full amount of the price of the land at the time of the sale. These instructions remained in force until 1840 but the troubles which arose in the county paralysed all business and no new sales were made during the three years.

Grants to Regulars and Militiamen.

We have already seen that, in obedience to the orders of the Imperial Government, free grants were given to militiamen who had served in the war of 1775 when the Province was invaded by the Americans. 232,281 acres were so granted to militiamen. Those who served in the war of 1812 were also rewarded in the same manner and received 217,840 acres for their services.

All these grants were subject to the ordinary conditions of settlement and to the stipulation that the lands granted would revert to the Crown if the conditions were not fulfilled. But the colonial administration took no trouble to have these conditions observed and to cancel the grants nearly all of which passed into the hands of influential speculators. As soon as the militiamen received their letters patent they sold their lands for a trifle, in many instances for a bottle of rum.

Grants in the District of Gaspé.

We have already seen that shortly after the American revolution, the Government sent into Gaspé district a certain number of loyalists to whom it gave lands, without, at the same time, giving them regular title deeds. It was the same with the Acadians who had no other title than tradition to the lands they occupied. When the population began to increase a little, land became comparatively scarcer and difficulties arose nearly everywhere in connection with real estate, difficulties which were all the harder to settle that there were no title deeds of the grants to establish the pretentions of the various claimants. In order to put an end to the troubles, the Legislature, in 1819, passed the act 59 Geo. III, chap. 3, authorizing the Government to appoint commissioners to make inquiries on the spot and to decide the ownership of the properties in dispute. Section 9 of the said act enacts as follows:

"The said Commissioners shall, from time to time, transmit to the Clerk of the Executive Council of this Province a report of all such claims as they shall have examined and decided and the person or persons in whose favour they shall have reported shall be considered as entitled to have a grant or grants under the Great Seal of the Province of the lands in respect of which such report shall be made."

The Commissioners, Messrs. J. T. Taschereau and L. Juchereau Duchesnay made a report (Appendix E of Journals of the Legislative Assembly for 1821-22) which contains the enumeration of the lots adjudicated upon. As may be easily seen by the text of the statute, these adjudications do not constitute regular titles and are only location tickets which where to be completed by letters patent under the Great Seal of the Province. Nevertheless, the parties have never, except in very rare cases, taken the trouble to obtain letters patent and have really no regular titles to their property. In fact, in the counties of Gaspé and Bonaventure, especially along the Baie des Chaleurs, more than half the people have no title, not even a location ticket for the property they occupy, which makes it very expensive to have searches made in the registry offices.

Exceptional Grants.

All the abovementioned extravagant grants were made by the colonial administration, but the Imperial Government displayed the same prodigality whenever opportunity offered. Thus the Duke of Portland, undoubtedly as a reward for their profusion, gave a quarter of a township, about 12,000 acres, to each member of the Executive Council constituting the Land Board which had granted the excessive concessions to township leaders from 1796 to 1806. He also made a present of 48,062 acres to the Governor, Sir Robert Shore Milnes, who, like his predecessors, had abused his position to enrich a handful of favorites to the detriment of the public. Mr. Felton, an emigrant, who was afterwards Commissioner of Crown Lands, brought with him a formal grant of 5,000 acres another conditional grant of 5,000 acres, and others for those who accompanied him.

In accordance with instructions from the English minister, the Duke of Richmond gave free grants to officers and soldiers of the regular army, and in 1832, Lord Goderich gave some to pensioners in commutation of their pensions. Finally it was from the Imperial Government that the British America Land Company obtained the lands it owns in the Eastern Townships; the grant in its favour covered an extent of 800,000 acres.

Monopoly of the Public Domain.

All this prodigality on the part of the Imperial and Provincial Governments had the effect of concentrating the possession of the public domain in the hands of a few individuals and to give rise to the great evil of landlordism and absenteeism which have so greatly hampered the spread of colonization. This evil was still further increased by sales at low figures, by means of which some speculators obtained possession of another portion of the public lands. During the investigation by Commissioner Buller in 1838 under instructions from Lord Durham, it was ascertained that 105 individuals or families owned at that time 1,404,500 acres outside of the seigniories, or an average of over 13,376 acres per individual or family. Defects in Surveys.

The surveys were not managed better that the other branches of the Crown Lands service. The Surveyor-General, who had the exclusive control of this branch, generally did not occupy himself nearly so much is controlling the surveys as in the selection of the best lands which he pointed out to the favorites of the administration. That is what Lord Durham says in his famous Report on the affairs of British North America:

" I have already pointed out the importance of accurate surveys of " the Public Lands. Without these there can be no security of property " in land, no certainty even as to the position or boundaries of estates " marked out in maps or named in title deeds.

" The consequences of this have been confusion and uncertainty in " the possessions of almost every man, and no small amount of ligitation. " As to Lower Canada, the evidence is still more complete and unsatis- " factory. The Commissioner of Crown Lands says, in answer to question: " I can instance two townships, Shefford and Orford (and how many more " may prove inaccurate as question of boundary arise, it is impossible to " say,) which are very inaccurate in their subdivision. On actual recent " survey it has been found that no one lot agress with the diagram on " record. The lines dividing the lots, instead of running perpendicularly " according to the diagram, actually run diagonally, the effect of which is " necessarily to displace the whole of the lots, upwards of 300 in number, " from their true position. The lines dividing the ranges are so irregular as " to give to some lots two and a half times the extent of others, though they " are all laid down in diagram as of equal extent; there are lakes also which " occupy nearly the whole of some lots that are entirely omitted; I have " heard complaints of a similar nature respecting the township of Gren- " ville. I have no reason for believing that the surveys of other town- " ships are more accurate than those of Shefford and Orford, other than that " in some parts of the country the same causes of error may not have " existed."

Mr. Kerr says:—"It is generally understood the surveys in many of the "various townships are very inaccurate; and many of the surveys have "been found to be so. I had in my hands the other day a patent for four "lots in the township of Inverness, three of which did not exist, granted "to a Captain Skinner. Three of the lots were decided not to be in exis- "tence, and I received compensation for them in another township. A great "error was discovered in the original survey of the township of Leeds. "The inaccuracy of the surveys is quite a matter of certainty. I would cite "a number of townships, Milton, Upton, Orford, Shefford, &c., where the "inaccuracy has been ascertained."

Commissioner Buller said very the same in his report. "The surveys "of the township lands also were so imperfect and erroneous as to add very "considerably to the practical difficulties in the way of settlement. Instances "have occurred in which the lots professed to be granted had no existence "except on the diagram in the Surveyor General's office, yet more nume- "rous were the cases in which a person receiving a grant of 200 acres "found that the lot assigned to him contained from 40 to 90 acres more or "less than its assumed dimension. In many instances the grant was "without a boundary, or its figure and boundaries were totally different "from those which, by reference to the map, would be found to have "been assigned to it."

"From the system pursued originally, the greater part of the surveys "were made by persons who were only nominally under the control of "his department. The surveyor employed for the purpose was paid by "the person to whom the land, when surveyed, was to be granted, and "those surveyors were employed who would contract for the performance "of the survey upon the cheapest terms. Many professed surveys, there- "fore, were made by persons who never had been on the ground. The "outlines of the township were run; but the interior plan was filled up "entirely, either according to the fancy of the surveyor or from the report "of the Indians or hunters who were acquainted with the general character "of the land included within the limits of the township.

It is not surprising after this that there should still be considerable confusion and uncertainty as to the original title deeds under which real estate is held in many parts of the townships conceded from 1796 to 1840.

Since the latter date, public lands have always been conceded under the system now in force, titles are much more regular and searches for the original titles are easily made.

REMARKS.

The is no need to dwell upon the importance and usefulness of this list which will enable every one to obtain the information he requires. In many parts of townships not yet erected into municipalities, there are lands whose owners are difficult to find without applying to the Registrar's Office to find out whether the patent has been issued; this will be avoided by means of this present list and all that will have to be done will be to apply to the registrar of each county for the name of the actual owner, when there have been changes in the ownership since the date of the original grant. Finally, the information given in this list will greatly facilitate searches in the registry offices and consequently diminish their cost. This is one of the chief reasons for the present publication.
